Accused of Stealing Gems Valued at $150,000 from Wife of Buffalo Broker—Accompanied Broker and Wife to Europe as Woman's Dancing Partner—Denies the Theft

(By The Associated Press)

Hugo Schoelkopf, wife of a wealthy Buffalo broker, during a New Year's party in Carman's apartment off Fifth avenue.

Carman, who was placed under arrest after nearly seven hours of grilling at the hands of detectives, was reported to have categorically denied he knew anything of the robbery altho admitting he was host at a party attended by Mrs. Schoelkopf in the building where she was attacked, chloroformed and stripped of her gems.

SECRETARY FALL TO RETIRE FROM OFFICE MARCH 4

Expects to Return to Practice of Law in New Mexico

(By The Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Secretary Fall of the interior department will retire from office March 4, it was announced today at the white house to return to the practice of law and the conduct of private business affairs in New Mexico. President Harding who is prepared to name his successor was declared by an administration spokesman to have made every effort to retain the cabinet officer in office and to have tendered him without avail an appointment to the supreme court bench to fill the vacancy caused by the recent retirement of Justice Pitney.

Secretary Fall said later that the only impelling cause for the step was the condition of his own affairs, and took occasion to deny reports that he had resigned to accept a place as counsel for an oil corporation or that any friction existed between himself and associates in the administration. He will go to his cattle ranch in New Mexico immediately upon leaving office and after a short vacation resume the practice of law.

As a senator, Secretary Fall was a personal friend and associate of Mr. Harding before entering the administration. It was understood when he accepted the post folio that he might serve through the administration as drought and cattle market conditions in the New Mexican territory where his market interests were said to have a claim on his attention.

More recently in connection with plans for the reorganization of government departments there were reports that Secretary Fall desired the forestry now attached to the agricultural department to be transferred to the interior department under his direction, but the whole matter has been in the abeyance. The president it was indicated might take some time in the selection of a successor to the retiring secretary whose resignation constitutes the second break within the administration's official family since Mr. Harding assumed office. Reports have been current that a shifting of cabinet assignment might result by which Secretary Hoover would vacate the commerce department to take over the direction of interior affairs, Julius H. Barnes, now president of the United States Chamber of Commerce might succeed to Mr. Hoover's post, it has been said.

A number of men associated with the administration have been named since Secretary Fall's retirement came under discussion as possible appointees for the interior post without any transfer with the president's cabinet.

Among them is Senator New of Indiana and Kellor of Minnesota, and Representative Mondell of Wyoming. Republican house leader, all of whom will retire from congress next March and Carmi Thompson, of Ohio, who was the republican candidate for governor of that state in the last election.

Washington, Jan. 2.—Meeting today after a three week recess the supreme court was expected to dispose of an unusual number of cases by opinions and orders. The court also received a new member today, Associate Justice Pierce Butler of St. Paul donning his official robes and to take the judicial oath from the chief justice.

CAVALRY COMPANY WILL REINFORCE INFANTRY UNITS

Crack Troop Ordered to Entrain for Bastrop Tuesday

(By The Associated Press)
BASTROP, La., Jan. 3.—Louisiana's crack cavalry troop of Jennings will reach here tomorrow morning to reinforce the three companies of state troops now on duty here and at Mer Rouge in connection with the state's investigations into the death of two men victims of a robbed and masked mob. While the order to entrain came suddenly, the movement was not a surprise, as it had been known since early last week that orders had been prepared for the calling out or two additional units.

At this time there is a company of infantry at Mer Rouge detailed to maintain order where most of the folks are armed and many divided into hostile class.

A machine gun and an infantry company are encamped here at the court house square guarding the court house and Parish hall where one man is being held on a charge of murder.

The cavalry unit which saw service overseas with the Rainbow division may be used in rounding up those persons whom the state will charge with complicity in the August kidnaping and butchery of Watt Daniels and Thos. Richards, Mer Rouge citizens. The roads at this time are almost impassible in many places because of the seasonal rains and cavalry would afford the most satisfactory means of communication. The movement was not regarded here as being influenced by the kidnaping of Harold Teegerstrom, time-keeper of a carbon plant at Spyker, who was spirited away by unidentified men Friday night.

Agents today were continuing their investigation of the incident but officials felt the youth was safe and out of the state having fled from the woods where he was held a captive. His importance as a witness at the hearing on Friday has not been disclosed.

Persons interested in the open hearing began to arrive in the city tonight. Two of the state's assistant attorney generals are expected to reach here tomorrow morning from New Orleans while the attorney general and others on his staff will be here Thursday.

The number of witnesses who will testify is not known, not even to the state. All incidents relating to the kidnaping of last August as well as other mob action in the parish will be gone into it has been stated.

There was nothing to indicate that Governor Parker who has been the controlling power behind the state's movements in the case would come here during the hearing.

Ku Klux Klan investigators were secretly continuing their investigation to be in a position to make an early report to their chiefs regarding the merit of the charges that have been made that Klansmen were responsible for the August outrage.

M'Koin willing to return voluntarily

(By The Associated Press)
BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 2.—Dr. B. M. McKoin, wanted in Louisiana for alleged murder in connection with the Morehouse Parish kidnapings is willing to return to Louisiana voluntarily but must first be released by the state court in whose custody he now is.

Governor Ritchie today wired Governor Harker for such release. Governor Ritchie informed Governor Parker that the requisition papers in his hands were not sufficient for the reason that the affidavits are made on information and belief and not by any one who had any personal knowledge of the alleged crime.

In case Governor Parker is willing to release Dr. McKoin the physician wants to leave tomorrow Governor Ritchie said in his dispatch.

If the case comes to trial before Governor Ritchie the Maryland executive told Governor Parker that his decision accordingly would be against requisition at this time but that he would hold Dr. McKoin for a reasonable time in order to give Louisiana authorities the opportunity to submit competent affidavits.

Believe they have drovers' robbers

(By The Associated Press)
KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 2.—With the arrest in St. Louis of two men suspected of complicity in the $97,000 Drovers' National Bank robbery here last month, Kansas City police said they believed that all but one of the bandits who participated in the robbery have been apprehended.

Warrants for the appearance in Kansas City of all those arrested have been sworn out, police announced tonight.

Sharon, Pa., Jan. 2.—Four men were killed and five others injured at the Petroleum Iron Works at Masury, Ohio, this morning when they were caught under a six hundred ton hydraulic press.

This shows the village of Mer Rouge, La., in the national spotlight as the scene of the murders of P. W. Daniels and T. P. Richards. Federal agents now are investigating Ku Klux Klan activities in the neighborhood. State troops are guarding the streets.

Armour and Company Has New President

(By The Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Jan. 2.—A self-made man who started his business career back in 1890 on the cattle killing floor at E. Godel & Sons packing house in Peoria, Ill., today became the president of Armour & Co., one of the biggest packing concerns in the world.

F. Edson White—"Ed"—to thousands of Armour employees—is the new president's name.

J. Ogden Armour, who has directed the destinies of the business since his father, Philip D. Armour, Sr., died in 1901, retires from the presidency and becomes chairman of the board. Philip D. Armour III, was designated first vice president.

Mr. White will have under his direction not only Armour & Co., of Illinois with its more than a billion dollars of business each year but also Armour & Co., of Delaware, the newly organized subsidiary.

If the proposed purchase of Morris and Co. goes thru and Mr. Armour said today he probably would have an announcement to make on that matter before long. Mr. White will be the head of the greatest packing industry ever created.

The new president's history is like that of dozens of other men who have started in the slime and dirt of the lowest round of "packingtown" and climbed to the ownership of vast fortunes and the control and management of almost untold millions.

Born at Peoria, Ill., September 3, 1873, less than 50 years ago

Mr. White obtained his education in public schools there. At seventeen he went to work on the killing floor of the Peoria packing house. At 20 he was in San Francisco, working for the Western Meat company. He remained there two years and came to Chicago, the center of the meat packing universe and went to work for Armour & Co., as an inspector in the core route department. Six months later he was a clerk in the dressed beef department and a year later he organized and became the first manager of the sheep department. For 10 years Mr. White was assistant to Arthur Becker one of the vice-presidents. In January 1912, he was made a director, and two years later a vice-president.

He was married in 1900 to Miss Lillian Pearson of Collingwood, Ontario. They have three children.

The passing of J. Ogden Armour from the active control of the company ends, for him, a period of more than 35 years devoted to development of the industry. Besides remaining as chairman of the board, Mr. Armour will devote his time to his other enterprises. He is a director of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad, the National City Bank of New York, the Continental and Commercial Bank of Chicago, the Hibernian Banking association of Chicago and the Northwestern and National Insurance company of Milwaukee. He also organized Armour and Co., Ltd., of London.

Job for every able-bodied man is Ford's cure

(By The Associated Press)
Says That is Only Sure Cure For World Unrest

Detroit, Jan. 2.—Henry Ford believes that "the one sure cure" for world unrest is "to create for every able-bodied man in the world a job of some sort."

Mr. Ford today made a delegation representing the International Labor office of the league of nations whose members held a long conference with him at his Dearborn offices.

The delegation which came to this country recently to obtain ideas that might be introduced in other countries for benefit of workers is headed by Albert Thomas of France, director of the International Labor office.

M. Thomas deplored the present unstable conditions in many parts of Europe and suggested that equalization of exchange rates might have beneficial results.

Mr. Ford replied that in his opinion the question of bringing the world back to peace and prosperity could not be solved thru money, declaring his belief that the solution rested in expansion of industry improvement of agricultural methods and education of the workers of the world.

"The solution is a job for every man," the manufacturer said. "Let the people of the world once get the idea that all they need is to do a good day's work six days every week and that in this way they can make their own prosperity and there will be no more talk about unstable conditions for instability will have ceased to exist."

Mr. Ford declared one of the most urgently needed reforms facing the world pertained to more widespread use of firm machinery.

He told the delegation that "farmers everywhere" must be taught the use of machines and their economic value before lasting prosperity can come to any people.

The manufacturer added he believed greater industry on the part of the world's peoples would end war.

PEORIAIANS GO SKATING

PEORIA, Ill., Jan. 2.—Peorians went on a chon skate on their skates after the New Year today, when a rain, freezing as fast as it fell, converted streets and sidewalks into first class skating rinks. The freeze slowed traffic and made walking difficult but it soon melted under a spring like sun.

TRAVELERS WERE HELD UP DEFENSE WITNESSES ALLEGED

Say Armed Guards Terrorized Citizens Near Lester Mine

(By The Associated Press)
MARION, Ill., Jan. 2.—The holding up and searching of peaceable travellers and the alleged terrorizing of the surrounding countryside by armed guards at the Lester "strip" mine was described by ten witnesses for the defense at the re-opening of the trial of five men charged with murder in connection with the Heroin riots today.

Only one of the witnesses, Charles Davis, a farmer and miner testified to an actual assault by any of the mine guards. Davis said he tried to go to the mine office to complain to C. J. McDowell, superintendent, regarding the destruction of parts of his pasture fence, but had been escorted off the mine property by a guard who pushed him with his fist.

On cross-examination by State's Attorney Duty, every other witness was asked whether the guards had hurt them and each replied in the negative.

Isaiah Gibbs, a farmer who testified that he leased 260 acres from the mine company said the guards cursed and swore in front of his "women folks."

Miss Althea Davis, daughter of Charles Davis, testified that two of the guards had come to her home while she was alone with her young sister and that one of them had said:

"By— we want some milk." She said she had given it to them from a churn and that they had gone away without paying her.

"Did they hurt any one or damage anything?" she was asked on cross-examination and replied in the negative.

Mrs. Nancy Davis, wife of Charles Davis, quoted one of the armed guards as saying to her: "The d— union men are skinned to come out. They have yellow streaks up their backs."

She added that the guards once marched her husband off with a gun at his back and his hands in the air.

Guards Closed Road. Both Gibbs and Davis testified that the guards had closed a road they used to drive their cattle to a water hole. Davis said that he sublet his farm from Gibbs who leased the property from the mine company.

"Was it not a matter of common understanding when you rented this land that it was subject to the rights of the mine owners to strip coal?" he was asked on cross-examination.

The witness said that was the understanding that he had the surface rights to the land. He said the road to the water pond was on private property and that it had been closed after the coming of the guards.

Gibbs quoted one of the armed guards as saying to him the morning of June 21:

"The damned union men were going to give us a call, but I guess they got cold feet and backed out. If they do come we are ready for them."

It was just a few hours later that the shooting at the mine started which culminated in the killing of three union miners that afternoon and the slaying of the 20 non-union workers the next morning.

Miss Myrtle Boyd, and Edith Boyd, her sister, testified that that shortly before the riots they had been passing the mine in an automobile and had been stopped by armed guards and the car searched.

Harold Brown, a young miner of Heroin, told of driving by the mine the night of June 17 in an automobile with two friends. He said they were stopped at the mine and their car searched after which one of the armed guards said:

"Boys, we can't let you thru. You'll have to turn around and go back."

The prisoners were finally rescued when a hole was cut thru the outside brick wall.

DAVID E. SHANAHAN IS CHOSEN SPEAKER OF HOUSE IN CAUCUS

Wins on the Fifth Ballot in a Field of Six Candidates—Is Listed as a Leader of the Anti-Administration Forces—Is a Veteran in the Legislative Ranks in Illinois

(By The Associated Press)
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 2.—David E. Shanahan of Chicago was unanimously elected speaker of the fifty third Illinois general assembly here tonight, after five ballots in a field of six candidates had been taken in the Republican caucus. The final ballot, between Speaker Shanahan and Norman G. Flagg, of Moro, gave a vote of 53 to 25 in favor of the former. Upon the motion of Mr. Flagg a unanimous vote was recorded.

In the Democratic caucus held at the St. Nicholas Hotel, John P. Devine of Dixon, was unanimously elected as floor leader of the house. The session lasted but thirty minutes.

Resolutions urging continued efforts toward economy were unanimously adopted. Thomas F. Donovan of Joliet, chairman of the state central Democratic committee, called the caucus to order. Michael Igoo, Chicago, from whom some opposition was forecast for Devine, allminated himself from the contest, being named chairman of the caucus. Charles E. Flack, Macomb, was secretary.

Preparations for the Jackson Day banquet, January 8, at 6:00 o'clock in the St. Nicholas Hotel were discussed briefly.

In the Republican caucus Mrs. Lottie O'Neill, Downers Grove, was an active participant as a Representative.

Bert H. McCann of Bloomington, was named clerk of the house. Miss Eva Young, Marion, as postmistress and Edwin C. Perkins, Lincoln as sergeant-at-arms.

The program for tomorrow when the session formally opens at noon includes the calling of the assembly by Secretary of State Emmerson.

Mr. Shanahan will be nominated for the speaker's chair by Homer Tice of Greenview.

Frank McCarthy of Elgin and Sidney Lyon of Chicago will make seconding addresses. John F. Devine, Democrat will be nominated for Speaker by Michael Igoo of Chicago. After a roll call, the election of Mr. Shanahan will follow by a vote on party lines.

Women to Celebrate. The seating of Mrs. O'Neill will be the cause of much ceremony. Delegations of women from the state will participate.

An outline of plans tonight included the complete organization and the probable reading of Governor Len Small's message at a joint session of the house and senate.

A recess probably will follow tomorrow's session, until Thursday when the vote for state treasurer and state superintendent of public instruction will be canvassed.

Members will draw their seats Thursday afternoon after which both sessions are expected to adjourn for an indefinite period, but probably about a week.

Mr. Shanahan is listed as a leader of the anti-administration forces. The caucus ended in less than an hour after it was indicated that a long drawn fight would probably take place following a vote of confidence and deliberations when candidates refused to withdraw from the caucus.

G. A. Dahlberg, speaker of the last house and Otto Sonnenag, Carlinville withdrew prior to the fifth ballot when a trend in the vote favored Shanahan. The first two ballots were scattered among the field of six. Baker, Church and McMackin also withdrew.

Marks is Seated. Springfield, Ill., Jan. 2.—Withdrawal of opposition to the seating of State Senator Arnold Marks, Chicago was one of the principal matters of business in the caucus of Republican senators here late tonight. The caucus met hurriedly and a two hour argument on the question of seating Marks occupied most of their time. On the face of election returns Norman G. McPherson, Chicago, Democrat was elected. The state canvassing board later ruled the count against McPherson. Vitrolle debate occupied the two hour session. This action temporarily disposes of the Marks-McPherson controversy.

Administration supporters will control the senate as the result of the plans drawn tonight. Senator Richard J. Barr, Joliet, was chosen as president pro tem, Frederick B. Roos, Republican, Oak Park, was named chairman of the caucus.

Assurance was given at the white house that the United States could abide by The Hague award of $12,000,000 to Norway in settlement of shipping claims.

The state department announced that Germany had proposed a four power agreement for no war for a generation without the sanction of a plebiscite, but that the suggestion was unacceptable to France.

A THOUGHT

See thy way in the valley; know what thou hast done — Jeremiah 2:23.

We turn and look upon the valley of the past year. There below are the spots stained by our evil and our fear. But as we look a glow of sunlight breaks upon the past and in the sunshine is a soft rain, falling from heaven. It washes away the stain, and from the purity of the upper sky a voice seems to descend and enter our sobered hearts. "My child, go forward, abiding in faith, hope and love, for I, I am with you always." — Stopford Brooke.

The Jacksonville police force did a nice piece of work in so promptly arresting the purse snatcher who has been making Jacksonville women fearful to be on the streets after dusk. This is only one of the good things that the department has done in meeting local difficulties.

Jacksonville has interest in the reorganization plans of J. Capps and Sons mills because the reorganization means additional expansion. This industry has long been the most important one here and its successful development has been a matter of Jacksonville pride.

A new charter and increased capitalization will make for still further progress. The mills constitute an important Jacksonville asset and the contribution which members of the firm and their co-workers in the management make to the business life of the community is equally as great.

The business district was so thronged with people yesterday that there was the appearance of one of the busiest pre-Christmas buying days. Business was good and the paying of accounts was the fashion. Merchants may vary in their estimate of the amount of business brought to Jacksonville by the gift campaign plan, but they are of one mind that the plan is a regular collecting agency and a mighty good one at that. The books of Jacksonville merchants today are in better condition that has been true on the same date for many a year.

Judging from the suits filed by the government against a number of dollar a year men who served in the war time, their services were very expensive. There are hints that at various times that some of these men serving without salary were influencing contracts in a way which resulted in great profit to themselves. The indictments have been a long time in coming, a fact which indicates that the government has used great care in the collecting of evidence before taking action.

A lot of people started off Monday with good resolutions for the new year. This habit of making New Year's resolutions is good, even if all the resolutions are not lived up to continuously. The trouble is with most people in the matter of good resolutions that they tackle the problem of improvement on a yearly basis instead of remembering that to make a resolve hold good all the year thru it is only necessary to keep it one day at a time.

The proposal to use the fund created from coupon purchases by merchants in the gift campaign for the purchase of aerial fire apparatus is meeting with general approval. An aerial tower of the most approved kind will cost approximately $12,000. It is not supposed that there will be any such sum as this in the merchants'

BERTON BRALEY'S DAILY POEM

Snow in the City

By Berton Braley

THE beautiful snow! The beautiful snow! It falls on the roofs and the pavements below, In flakes that come floating down gently and slow.

The beautiful snow! It's not beautiful long. When trampled by feet of the hurrying throng It isn't a subject for music or song.

For even as downward it airily flutters, It mucks up the streets and it chokes up the gutters And "Dorn all this snow!" the pedestrian mutters!

The tempers of drivers it woefully wrecks, It slides off the roofs down the passer-by's necks, It knows no distinction of age or of sex.

It melts, and clear over the curbstone it washes, It overflows rubbers and soaks through galoshes, On furs and on gowns of the women it splashes.

The beautiful snow! On the city it steals, It causes the skidding of automobiles, And makes you get out and put chains on the wheels.

It swiftly grows dirty and sloppy to view, It harbors bacilli of colds and the flu, Till half of the populace sneezes, "A-choo!"

The beautiful snow! In the country it's so, But here in the city we greet it with woe, The far, far from beautiful, "Beautiful Snow!"

fund, but if three or four thousand dollars remains this amount would make a very substantial start toward the payment for the aerial equipment.

With this amount provided it is quite certain that an impetus would be given to the matter which would certainly result in the securing of the necessary money, at least in the course of another year or two.

The city council at the session last night passed a resolution providing for a budget system appropriation ordinance. This can be put down as a forward step in the effort of city authorities to ward greater economy and in aiding the heads of the different departments to live within their means.

Under the customary appropriation ordinance the thought has been to fix the amount of appropriation large enough to prepare for all contingencies. Thus the sum total of the appropriation ordinance has often been around $400,000, when the actual funds available were less than $100,000. This fact has sometimes resulted in a false conception of the situation.

At any rate, the experience of other cities where the budget system has been tried has encouraged economies. In preparing such an ordinance it will be the purpose to get the figures from each department as to the actual needs and then to endeavor to hold expenditures within this estimate.

PROBES ARMORY FIRE FOR WAR DEPARTMENT

Col. S. O. Tripp Arrives in City to Investigate Loss of Government Property in Recent Disaster—Will Fix Responsibility.

Col. S. O. Tripp, quartermaster general of the Illinois National Guard, arrived in the city Tuesday evening in the capacity of surveying officer for the U. S. War Department, and immediately began an investigation into the recent destruction by fire of the Armory Hall and the government military stores in the building. Col. Tripp refused to make any comment on the probable results of his work here, stating merely that it is his duty to investigate the matter and make a report to the war department, fixing the responsibility for the loss of government property.

Practically the entire equipment of the local Howitzer company was destroyed in the fire, entailing a loss to the government. These military stores are loaned to the states by the war department, and their safe return is guaranteed by national guard officers and the state military organization.

Immediately upon his arrival Tuesday evening, Col. Tripp established headquarters at the Dunlap and began taking testimony as to the recent fire. He is to list the property of the government destroyed and secure evidence tending to fix the responsibility for its destruction. Nothing as to the nature of this evidence or as to the probable findings in the investigation can be made known until the report of Col. Tripp reaches the war department. No information could be given as to how long it would take the surveying officer to complete his investigation.

as Cigarette, the Daughter of the Regiment, in the romantic story of adventure and thrill that will live forever—

'Under Two Flags'

From the Immortal Novel by OUIDA

THE STORY

Victor, a derelict in Algiers, shakes dice with Cigarette, the daughter of the Regiment, to determine whether he shall fight with France or with her enemies, the Arabs. Cigarette wins and subsequently learns to love the quietly forceful Victor, who is a man of mystery. Princess d'Amague arrives from England at the height of the intrigue against the Chasseurs promoted by the Arab Sheik Ben Ali Hamed, and it is revealed that Victor is in reality a British nobleman. His favor with the Princess earns him the hatred of his colonel, who conspires to have him shot for treason. Cigarette, apparently accepting the advances of her enemy, the Sheik, learns of this and riding wildly with a stay of execution, arrives just at the crest of the Arab attack. What follows both in the way of stupendous action and beautiful love scenes helps to make this a picture that will live forever in the memory of all who see it.

PREMIERS LEAVE CONFERENCE IN GLOOMY MOOD

Seem Well Nigh Hopeless of Reaching Any Agreement

(By The Associated Press)
PARIS, Jan. 2.—The prime ministers of France, Great Britain and Belgium and Marquis Della Torretta for Italy, emerged this afternoon in a gloomy mood from the first short session of the premier's council, called to solve the reparations complex. They were well nigh hopeless of agreement and members of their delegations talked of the conference breaking up in two days. The meeting a continuation of the postponed London conference has borne little fruit.

Premier Bonar Law remarked that owing to public opinion in France and Great Britain an agreement would be most difficult, if not impossible.

M. De Lastyrie, the French finance minister who was with Premier Poincare in the meeting said extending his arms:

"England and France are as far apart as that."

He immediately proceeded to Elysee palace to consult with President Millerand after which a cabinet council was summoned to meet tomorrow.

The Belgian and Italian delegation expressed dismay at the unyielding positions taken up by Premier Bonar Law and Poincare, each with the mediated support of their cabinets.

The French, British and Italian plans were laid before the council. The British and French are alike in fixing German reparations at a total of fifty billion gold marks and similar also in setting up a comprehensive financial control of Germany. They are in direct opposition on the question of penalties, France being for taking so-called productive guarantees in the Rhineland and the Ruhr, while Great Britain would occupy German territories beyond the present zone only upon some future default and with the "unanimous" consent of the allies.

France desires to pay the European inter-allied debts with class reparations bonds, and England insists upon the partial payment of debts due to her with the immediate taking of gold deposited by France and Italy in London for security for war advances.

This gold includes 1,864,000,000 francs, or about one-third the gold reserve of the Bank of France.

The Italian plan follows in general terms the French idea, but relies upon persuading Germany to provide the guarantees without the menace of force.

Premier Theunis and Foreign Minister Jaspar of Belgium brought the plan of Belgium government which they did not submit. They did not intend to submit it today but were reserving it as a basis of compromise should there be an opportunity to do so later.

J. CAPPS & SONS FIRM IN REORGANIZATION

Big Jacksonville Concern Increases Capital From $200,000 to $400,000—New Charter Provides for Expanded Business.

Announcement was made yesterday by Harry M. Capps, president of the J. Capps & Sons Woolen Mills, Ltd., of a reorganization of that concern. The capitalization has been increased from $200,000 to $400,000, in order to keep pace with the widening field of operations.

Mr. Capps explained that in addition to the increasing capital that another purpose in reorganization has been to acquire a charter more in keeping with the company's situation and plans than could be true of a charter granted back in 1886.

It can be readily understood that the business of the Capps mills has undergone a complete change since the date of the original charter and that certain difficulties have been encountered in the conduct of the business which are removed by the charter changes.

The personnel of the officers continues as heretofore: Harry M. Capps, president; William T. Capps, vice president; Alfred T. Capps, secretary and treasurer. These officers and James G. Capps constitute the membership of the board of directors.

In the increase in the capital stock the ownership remains as heretofore except for the fact that several of the heirs of the late Stephen R. Capps, who was for so many years the directing chief of the mills, have transferred their holdings to their brothers, Alfred T. Capps and Harry M. Capps.

The Capps mill is the most important industrial plant in Jacksonville, giving as it does constant employment to several hundred people. The forward yet conservative policies that have been followed by the firm have made it possible to operate the mill almost without interruption while similar concerns in other cities have been subject to frequent shut downs.

With passing years earnings have been continuously turned into betterments and the mill property has been steadily expanded. The making of clothing has been a development of the later years and the mill holds a unique place in the world of manufacture as an institution which turns raw wool into finished garments.

The late Joseph Capps came to Jacksonville in 1839 and founded the mill which today bears his name. As the date readily reveals, the mill has been for a long time a part of the industrial life of Jacksonville, and the development which has come thru the years has been the result of the wise policies of management adopted and consistently adhered to.

COAL COMMISSION URGES NECESSITY OF AN AGREEMENT

Says Miners and Operators Should Get Together

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—An obvious necessity exists that employers and employees in the bituminous coal industry whose representatives will meet in Chicago tomorrow should promptly devise some plan to keep mines in operation after next April 1, according to a telegram sent today to officials of the gathering by the United States coal commission.

"Business halts while in doubt as to your action and awaits with anxiety the speedy and successful outcome of your labors, the message signed by J. H. Hammond as chairman of the commission declared.

"You can contribute to the peace of American life by reaching a speedy agreement and avoiding further conflict in the fields under your control. Your agreement will spare the commission the necessity of fixing blame for failure to adjust your difference. Any failure within the coal industry to prevent another cessation of work in the spring the message added would inevitably result in most serious injury to general business and common welfare of this country."

PYTHIANS WILL HOLD CONFERENCES

Jacksonville Lodge Refers Questions of Joint Interest to Committee For Further Investigation.

At a meeting of Jacksonville lodge No. 152, Knights of Pythias, held last night, the question of an apportionment of cost of maintaining headquarters with No. 376 or a consolidation of the two lodges was referred to the joint committee for further consideration.

Jacksonville Lodge No. 152 has a membership of from 250 to 290 while the membership of Favorite lodge is in excess of 500. Because of the decided variance in the number of members there have been several opinions in Jacksonville lodge with reference to the best course to follow.

One suggestion has been to dissolve the present relationship between the two lodges and to seek new quarters. A second proposal has been consolidation with No. 376, and a third a continuation of the present plan by a reapportionment as to the cost of maintaining the lodge quarters. As indicated, the whole matter has been again referred to a joint committee.

Bradish and Mrs. Lillian Danskin, together with Mrs. F. M. Roberts of Chapin.

Dr. Grace Dewey, who is a member of the board of directors of the League of Women Voters, went to Chicago yesterday and will accompany the delegation from that city to Springfield today.

Tonight a banquet will be held at the Leland in honor of Mrs. O'Neill at which Mrs. Julia Lethrop, head of the children's bureau of the U. S. government at Washington, will preside. The Morgan county women will attend the banquet before their return.

MUST HAVE QUARTERS FOR HOWITZER COMPANY

Capt. Wesley James of the local Howitzer company is casting about for temporary quarters for the company. Practically all of the company equipment was destroyed by the recent fire, but steps will be taken immediately for securing new equipment if an armory is available. Otherwise the company is very likely to be disbanded.

There is but one Howitzer company in a regiment and a great deal of special training is requisite for the work. It is important not only to Jacksonville but to the state as well to retain the local Howitzer company, and no doubt citizens will be glad to co-operate in any movement to help foster the organization.

High Percentage Hatches

With the Queen Incubator is EASY Money

Everyone wants big hatches, and the Queen will deliver them. Besides being wonderfully well constructed, in the way of materials and workmanship, the Queen embodies the most scientific principles of artificial incubation.

The Queen is doubly insulated. First there are double walls of California Redwood, forming a dead air space. Second, corrugated strawboard is used between the wooden walls. Proper insulation adds considerable expense to the manufacturing cost, but it is an absolute requirement of a good incubator.

The Queen is the only incubator that carries out the double Redwood wall construction all around, and provides a double wall front, in the way of two separate doors. The outer door is a solid panel of Redwood that is hinged entirely independent of the inner door and is fastened with a sash lock that draws it tight, thus making the loss of heat impossible.

The inner door is also of Redwood construction, containing a panel of glass the full length and height of the egg chamber.

Queen Brooders are Good Step-Mothers

They are designed to raise the chicks in all kinds of weather at any time of the year, with complete protection day and night. The heating system gives an abundance of heat, distributed properly, while plenty of fresh air is provided automatically without draughts.

We sell the Queen because we are here to stay and cannot afford to trifle with your eggs. Come in and see how a Queen operates.

She Got "Doc" to Prescribe

But not what you think. Her baby had pneumonia, and the coal-fest house was cold and damp, so Mrs. Albert Chapman of Dorchester, Mass., had the doctor prescribe a load of coal. The local dealer filled it, and announced that doctor's prescriptions would be given precedence in the future. Looks as if there might be more "fake" ailments for the doctors to treat.

IN THE WORLD OF RESEARCH (By James B. Shaw)

"The Spirit of Research," is the theme of a pamphlet published recently on the press of the University of Illinois, written by Dr. James B. Shaw, formerly of this city. Dr. Shaw, who was at one time a member of the faculty of Illinois college and who is a son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Joy, of this city, discusses in this publication scientific, mathematical and artistic research and concludes with a study of the "spirit of research."

Paragraphs from the discussion of this theme are given herewith: Scientific Research.

Scientific research has for its object the statement of laws. This is the same as saying that science researches for what it considers to be uniformities in human experience. It hunts for the everlasting hills that hold up the four corners of the sky. It experiments over and over on like materials to ascertain if the same results follow. It analyzes the situation in every experiment and tries to ascertain what elements are necessary, what accidental. It endeavors to reduce dependence to a numerical statement, that is, it tries to base its conclusions on measurement. Of course, much of its present content is not altogether so based, perhaps never can be so based, but the attempt is made to reduce a data to numerical form. Science endeavors to be impersonal, to resort to self-registering apparatus, to the camera instead of the eye, to machines that draw their own graphs. Its first aim is a perfectly accurate record of the objective facts.

The facts determined beyond all question of error, self-deception, omission, or imagination, the next problem is to find the laws they imply. This is done first for the obvious connections between phenomena, then as the number increases they are synthesized into more general laws, and these with the assistance of fortunate hypothesis are included in more general statements, the whole: facts, laws, and hypotheses, ultimately constituting a theory. The theory of celestial mechanics, or theory of electromagnetics, or theory of evolution are instances.

Science searches for the invariants of the world. It desires to discover the permanent in the flowing stream of experience. It dreams of eternal verities, of a stable, essential structure of the universe, which is not subject to the vicissitudes of chance. Science does not find nor expect to find the capricious, the spontaneous, the spiritual, for it assumes as its subject matter that which is determined. Given the state of the universe at a given instant, its history up to that instant and the hope of science is to be able to say what any succeeding state of the universe would be. Science sits patiently unraveling the most tangled threads that the web of phenomena produce, never tiring never retrograding. Its hypothesis may give way to new ones and its theories may be included in more satisfactory ones, but the essential results of science are permanent, and it keeps what it gains. It saves the infant from death, the child from disease and malnutrition, the youth from dangerous ignorance, the adult from premature decay. It corrects educational systems, reduces drudgery, multiplies the yield for labor, increases the time for leisure, removes fear from the world. It gives humanity power over its surroundings, enhances comfort and well-being. It gives more time for reflection. It guarantees progressive evolution of the race. It gives life and life more abundantly.

This is the golden age for scientific research. Thousands are searching the heavens, the earth, the waters, and the waters under the earth, for jewels, small or large, with which to adorn the crown of science. Since the time of Descartes—the founder of modern science—and his injunction to see, and to see more clearly, the voltages of science have spread over the earth, examining the microscopic, the telescopic, every nook and cranny of the earth, investigating patiently and thoroughly what they found. Science is a supreme court of last appeal, in all questions of natural law and inviolability, for it is simply the human mind perceiving these things with clear, unobstructed, sharply defined, immediate vision.

Artistic Research.

The dreamer of dreams is also engaged in research. He is not like the mathematician, looking for the universal; nor like the anthropologist, looking for the intertwined threads of the web of man and the world; nor like the scientist, searching for the uniformities of human experience; his object is the romance of the world, the fascinating mystery that lives behind every veil. The architect's touch makes stone float in the air; the sculptor's pliant fingers mould the invisible forms that are pleading for expression; the painter's purple light and glowing mountains beckon man to the enchanted lands; the musician's witchery speaks to the heart from incarnate forms of etheral life; the poet uses verse and prose to write the Divine comedy and the human comedy. Each is engaged in research behind the phenomenal screen. Like other investigators the artist is hunting reality.

He investigates the aspirations of man, his hopes, his desires, his dreams, his visions. His methods are his own. No rigorous reasoning with its fine steel net can catch the cloud-forms of his domain. No balance can weigh the character of Hamlet; no spectroscopy can resolve the ninth symphony; no electrometer measure the potential in the descent from the cross. No institution or society can imprison the subtle mist that bloweth where it listeth. But just as in mathematics the imaginary becomes the guide to the common; just as in anthropology the ideal of liberty, fraternity, and equality, emancipates woman, dethrones czar, educates the slave; so too the reveries of the artist create new elements of life, give greater sustenance to the wings of the mind, infuse the spirit of man with new daring.

The artist enunciates truth. They have often startled the race with their subtle and profoundity. Each school of art has seen a new vision, some new expression for these inner forms continually struggling for the right to be born, some new idea of sculpture, painting, music, of literary creation. They are experimented with refined and finally accepted just as are truths of mathematics, anthropology, or science. Not that every new creation of art had had its chance, any more than have all the new ideas of scientists, mathematicians, or anthropologists. The mind of man evolves but slowly.

"There was once a little girl, to whom an elderly friend gave a hyacinth bulb. 'Little girl,' she said, tossing up in her wrinkled hands the bulb, wrapped up in its balloon silks, 'little girl, there is enclosed a miracle here; indeed, my child, life, joy, blowing color, perfume shut up in a jealous flask. It is a fine gift, a fairy present. Guard it well!' The little girl adored the hyacinth bulb, said her prayers while looking at it, nursed it like a doll, put it under her pillow at night, kissed it fondly upon waking, even took it out for a walk. But, alas! without water, without earth, without rest, the unhappy bulb withered, without ever permitting a tremor in a little green tongue, which even in the dark cellar it had put out at the face of life, as a matter of principle. And the disappointed little girl one day threw it in the face of the vexed old lady.

"Alas! Man is the child clinging to his hyacinth bulb, and with it withers his dearest desires, his hope, his dream." (Gerard D'Houville.)

Art searches for the spiritual, the ideal, the spontaneous, the free, knowing that these are the real, the immortal. A tear and a laugh mean more to it than an atom, a curve, a supreme court of last appeal, in all questions of the spontaneity of man and the world, for it too is the human mind perceiving the things of the spirit with clear, unobstructed, sharply defined immediate vision.

The Spirit of Research.

The spirit of research is the aspiring soul of man beating its wings against its limitations. In itself it finds the power of flight, the power of vision, the power of creation. It is not confined to what is in the field of view of a microscope, however minutely accurate. It is never content with the habitation it has built, however convenient the furnishings. It rises on the rarefied air of mathematics that it may see the more distant horizons; it supports itself on the solid objectivity of science that it may transmit its creation to posterity; it studies the intricate game of man versus nature in order that it may find the paths on which it may go farthest; it utilizes the creations of the artist as patterns for its own spiritualized creations. Its characteristic is creative life, for it emanates from life, not from mechanism. What it does is the spontaneous outcome of activity.

The true scientific research is shown in Newton: "Playing like a boy in the seashore, diverting himself in now and then finding a smoother pebble or prettier shell than ordinary, whilst the great ocean of truth lies all undiscovered before him." It is shown in Poincare: "Who was willing to work, to suffer, to pay for his seat of the show in order that he might see, or at least that those who came after him might see." True mathematical research meets the criterion of Emerson: "We do not listen with the best regards to the verses of the man who is only a poet, nor to his problems if only an algebraist; but if a man is at once acquainted with the geometric foundation of things and with their festal splendor, his poetry is exact, and his arithmetic musical." The true anthropological research meets the test of Henry Adams: "History has never regarded itself as a science of statistics. It is the science of vital energy in relation with time; and of late this radiating center of its life has been steadily tending— together with every form of physical and mechanical energy— toward mathematical expression."

The spirit of research inspires the mind "to creep from fancy to the fact, and thus find progress, man's distinctive mark" (Brown-ing). The spirit of research is like Socrates, who wished to know not only what seemed to be true, but what it meant for the soul and how far it could carry man on his upward flight. The spirit of research is life with its two wings: Intelligence and sympathy. It is on its forward flight, impelled by the urge of an inner power. It rests but a moment on any crag, however solid; it drinks but an instant at any spring, however fresh; for from the beginning of the world it has had a vision whose beauty, whose intoxication, whose smile, eternally say: Come.

PYTHIANS TO HOLD JOINT INSTALLATION

fixed to his home on West State street for the past ten days by illness and is now recovering.

Why the "Morning Grouch?"

Many people awake feeling irritable and nervous—and are annoyed at trifles they wouldn't notice at any other time.

This nervous, irritable feeling lasts until after they have had their cup of coffee—sometimes it takes the second cup.

The reason for this is simple; their nerves are crying out for the caffeine contained in the coffee they crave.

And now, if this "strikes home," ask yourself why you should not quit a habit that makes you nervous and irritable.

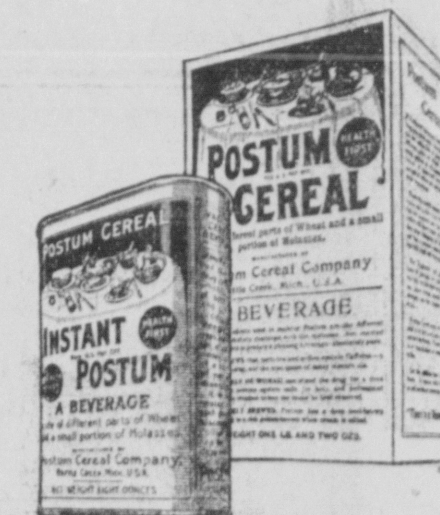

Be your natural self; try doing without coffee for a week or so—and drink rich, fragrant Postum instead.

Postum is a pure cereal beverage—refreshing and satisfying, yet absolutely free from caffeine or other harmful ingredients.

Postum comes in two forms:—Instant Postum (in tins) prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling fully twenty minutes.

DOKAYS WIN GAME FROM FRANKLIN 26-13

Local Tossers Take Visitors Into
Camp in Opener—Good Crowd Witnessed Game.

In a game marked by fast work on the part of the Dokays forwards, Franklin's Independents went down to defeat in David Prince gymnasium Tuesday night. It was the opening game for the Dokays and from the form shown the local tossers should put a majority of their games on the right side of the ledger during the season.

A good crowd turned out for the game and was well repaid as it was a hard fought game during the first half which ended 13 to 6 in favor of the Dokays. In the second half the Dokays further increased the lead by scoring 14 to four for the visitors.

Wood, Kennedy, Smith and Jones scored the points for the Dokays while W. Seymour, M. Woods and N. Seymour did the scoring for the Independents.

RICKEY PANS BIG SHAKEUP IN CARDS

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—By the A. P. Branch Rickey, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, plans a wholesale shakedown in his team before the beginning of the 1923 pennant race, announcing that every member of his club, with the exception of Second Baseman Rogers Hornsby, home run "king" and leading batter of the National League, and the catching staff, were on the market either for sale or trade.

Badly in need of pitchers, the Cardinal pilot declared his intention of buying and trading players in order to build up the hurling staff, which for several seasons has been the club's weak point.

Rickey has signed up a dozen recruit twirlers, who are to be taken on the spring training trip to Bradenton.

The new hurlers include: Scott, McKee, Wigginton, Ferguson, Varley, Sell, Dyer, Stewart and Riviere, right handers, and Ward, Baile and Litch, left handers, all from smaller middle-western leagues.

Batting power was given the credit for carrying the Cardinals into a tie with Pittsburgh for third place last season. Ragged fielding and inferior pitching were declared the main drawbacks of the team.

Rickey has asserted that Hornsby, for whom sums ranging up to $300,000 have been offered, was not for sale at any price and even trading was out of the question. He declared also that his catching department, consisting of Vernon Clemens, Eddie Ainsmith and Harry Jackson, was not on the block.

Rickey and Samuel Breadon, president of the club, refuse to make any predictions as regards the prospects of the Cardinals for next year, but are hopeful the team will equal and better the showing of 1922.

CRACK "BARNYARD GOLFERS" ENTER BIG TOURNEY (By NEA.)

St. Petersburg, Fla.—With the arrival here of J. Todd Flower of Akron, Ohio, vice president of the National Association of Horse Shoe Pitchers, plans are getting under way for the fifth annual mid-winter tournament for the United States "barnyard golf" championship to be held late in February.

Flower said today he hoped to have a cash prize list for winners amounting to $5,000, of which $1,500 has already been raised.

The contests will be held in the water front baseball park here where there are seating accommodations for 10,000 spectators.

Every ex-national champion has been entered in the tournament, including the present title holder, Frank Lundin of New London, Iowa. The men are Fred M. Brust, Columbus, Ohio; George May, Akron, Ohio; Frank Jackson, Kellerton, Iowa; Charles Bobbit, Lancaster, Ohio; and C. C. Davis of Kansas City, Mo.

John Miller, Rock Valley, Iowa, horseshoe pitcher, who finished high in the tournament of two years ago, arrived during the week, to carry on his training for the event. Miller is 82.

MINNESOTA GETS FORMER AMES STAR

Minneapolis, Jan. 2.—Ray Hennekes, guard and tackle on the 1922 Ames, Iowa, football team and 190 pound athlete who earned 100 yards in 10 2-5 seconds, enrolled at the University of Minnesota today.

The big athlete hails from Shakopee, Minn.

Because of the conference ruling which makes necessary a year's residence in college before participating in athletics Hennekes will not be eligible to play on the 1923 Gopher eleven. He is said to be an experienced basketball man and will be eligible for the 1923 team.

GENE SARAZEN GAINS HIGHEST HONORS

Started By Winning Southern Championship and Followed
This Up By Taking the National Open Championship.

By BILLY EVANS

SARAZEN

In golf in 1922, Gene Sarazen was the outstanding figure from the masculine point of view. Glenna Collett from the feminine angle.

Sarazen started the year by winning the southern championship from a high-class field. He followed this up by winning the national open championship of the United States at Skokie. This is regarded as the highest honor that American golf can bestow.

In winning the national open, Gene was favored by the breaks in luck. The breaks always seem to smile on the winner. Some of the experts regarded the sensational victory in the light of a fluke.

All such thoughts were dispelled when Sarazen, in match play championship, pitted against the very best pro players in the states won the professional golfers' title. Walter Hagen, who, next to Sarazen, is the big figure among the men, won high laurels when he captured the British open. Sarazen's victory in the national open at Skokie raised the argument as to who should be regarded as the leading player in this country, if not the world.

The discussion aroused, led to a match between these two great players. It was in a way, the world series of golf. After trailing for the first 36 holes, Sarazen came from behind to one of the greatest wins of the year in golf circles.

Glenna Collett, the 19-year old girl, clearly established her right to the premier position among women golfers. In the national women's championship, she breezed thru a classy field, meeting and defeating in the final match for the championship, one of England's greatest players, Mrs. W. A. Garvin, who has enjoyed a much wider experience as a golfer.

COLLETT SWEETER

Jesse Sweetser, who has been coming fast for a couple of years, finally had his golfing efforts rewarded by winning the national amateur honors. He defeated Chick Evans in the finals. Jesse Guilford, holder of the title, picked by many of the experts to repeat, failed to come thru.

A victory placing to golfer was the winning of the western open by Mike Brady. For years Mike has been on the verge of winning some of the biggest honors in the game.

BOXING ASSOCIATION TO HOLD CONVENTION

The association's aim of bringing about cooperation among boxing authorities thruout the country has been realized to a large extent, according to Mr. O'Rourke. Important steps toward raising ring standards are likely to be taken at the coming convention.

CUBS TRADE BARBER FOR HOOD OF DODGERS

Chicago, Jan. 2.—Outfielder Turner Barber of the Chicago Nationals today was released to the Brooklyn Nationals in exchange for Outfielder Hood, who was recalled by the Dodgers from the Portland Club of the Pacific Coast League. Hood will go to the Los Angeles club of the Pacific Coast League in part payment for Pitcher Nick Dumovitch. It was announced by President Veck today.

NOTRE DAME WINS OVER NORTHWESTERN

Chicago, Jan. 2.—Notre Dame defeated Northwestern in the final pre-conference game at Evanston tonight, 20 to 13. The purple got away to a good start and led 9 to 7 at the end of the first half, but could cage only one basket and a few foul throws in the second period.

PREPARE TO PAY HOMAGE TO KEELER

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—Baseball and other organizations in Greater New York were preparing tonight to pay homage to the memory of "Wee Willie" Keeler one of the greatest batsmen of all time who died in Brooklyn yesterday of heart disease after a lingering illness.

Officers of the three major league clubs here, the New York Giants and Yankees and the Brooklyn Nationals besides John A. Hydlar, president of the National League, planned to attend Keeler's funeral which will be held Thursday morning. The Order of Elks of which the former Baltimore Oriole star was a member announced that ritual services would be held tomorrow night.

Chicago, Jan. 2.—The first squad of Chicago Cubs including the battery men will depart for Catalina Island, Calif., February 17, instead of February 22, as originally announced, President Veck said tonight.

"CHASING SALLY" AT THE GRAND TONIGHT

W. B. Patton is coming here on his annual tour for 1921-22 in his new mile-a-minute comedy "Chasing Sally" for one performance Wednesday, January 3 and the advance sale of seats now indicates a capacity house. Mr. Patton has always produced excellent plays, and with them, he has established the largest following of theatergoers than any other individual star playing the Central and Mid-West states. Successful comedies suited for the various types of comedians are quite hard to obtain, and it has been no easy matter for The Empire State Producing Co. of New York to procure material every season for W. B. Patton's peculiar style of acting, characteristic drawl of speech, etc., etc. It is likewise necessary, as in other standard branches of business enterprises that have built up a reputation, to hold up the quality of their products, each succeeding one must be an improvement on the former, and such is the case with Mr. Patton's annual offerings. In the new comedy "Chasing Sally" they seem to have reached the apex of real merit, for it is very, very funny, full of action, love, rich with surprises that pack a tremendous wallop, wholesome, delightful, extraordinary amusement. The Authors have broken away from the traditional stories and have produced a rip-roaring comedy which is different. It's simply a scream during the entire three acts.

WARREN NIXON'S DEATH CAME VERY SUDDENLY

Former Jacksonville Young Man, Dead In St. Louis After Brief Illness—Had Brilliant Record In U. S. Naval Service.

Many Jacksonville people were shocked yesterday to learn of the sudden death of Warren Nixon of St. Louis. Mr. Nixon had been in a hospital in St. Louis for several weeks, but his condition had not been accounted as critical.

Mr. Nixon, who was a son of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Nixon, former residents of Jacksonville, spent the earlier years of his life in this city. Later he attended Annapolis naval academy and in the subsequent years of service in the navy made an unusual record. During one period he was in command of a vessel and at various times was entrusted with responsible private missions on behalf of the government.

Mr. Nixon's part in the world war came as the result of his enlistment. Prior to that time he engaged in business with his father, serving as vice president of the Western Tie and Timber Co. After the war he again entered into the affairs of this company and had been actively engaged in extending the business.

That Mr. Nixon made an unusual record in the navy was evidenced by the fact that he was one of the representatives of this government sent to a conference of experts held in England. Subsequently a text book he wrote on "Marine Engineering" attracted favorable notice and was added to the course of study at Annapolis.

Mr. Nixon is survived by his wife, one son, James Nixon, his step son, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Nixon of St. Louis and one sister, Mrs. L. L. Middleton of Kansas City.

The deceased was a grandson of Mrs. Irvin Dunlap of this city and a nephew of M. F. Dunlap, and had a number of other Jacksonville relatives including Mrs. E. E. Crabtree, Miss Carrie Dunlap, Miss Mary Wade and Felix E. Farrell, who left for St. Louis yesterday afternoon. M. F. Dunlap and Ralph I. Dunlap will go to St. Louis this afternoon, where the funeral service will be held Thursday.

CITY BUDGET SYSTEM WILL BE ADOPTED

Council Provides for New Plan in Making Appropriations—Water Main for Howe Street—To Name Members of Park and Library Boards.

The city council at a special meeting Tuesday night adopted an ordinance providing for the laying of a water main on Howe street. This action was taken after a unanimous petition had been received from the property owners there, and an offer made to pay the cost of the construction work immediately.

The council also passed a motion on the basis of a report presented providing that the outside walls of the Strawn and Kirby buildings on the south side of the square shall be torn down. The owners of the property will be notified that the walls are counted as in dangerous condition.

Mayor Crabtree presided at the session. Others present were City Clerk Scott, Alderman McGinnis, Lowrey, Ehnle, Chaplin, Harmon, Sorrells and Row.

Mayor Crabtree stated that the terms of Mrs. A. Wehl and T. J. Brennan as members of the park board have expired and that this is also true of several members of the library board. The mayor indicated that he would submit nominations for these posts at the next regular meeting of the council.

After a thorough discussion the council passed a resolution providing for the preparation of a budget system appropriation ordinance to take the place of the old form appropriation ordinance. It is the purpose of the budget system to have figures from each department indicating the estimate of the necessary expenditures for the coming year. The experiences of a number of cities were quoted by Mayor Crabtree where the budget has brought good results.

The councilmen were of unanimous opinion that it would be worth while to try out the plan here.

There was informal discussion of some phases of the proposed new garbage ordinance as presented by Alderman Harmon of the health committee and Dr. R. V. Brokaw, county health officer. This ordinance will be in complete form in the course of the next two or three weeks.

AUTOMOTIVE MEN TO MEET FRIDAY NIGHT

First Meeting of New Year to Be Held at Dunlap Hotel—May Hold Spring Show Under Tent.

Friday night the Jacksonville Automotive Dealers association will hold its first meeting of the year at the Dunlap Hotel, the principal business of this session will be to make preliminary plans for the automobile show and merchants' exposition which it is planned to hold again this spring. Fully two months is needed in order to properly arrange for such an exposition as it is proposed to stage it on a more splendid scale than any of the past shows.

It seems probable that the spring show will be held in a huge tent, something on the order of the "big top" so familiar to all circus fans. Such a tent would afford ample space for a splendid aggregation of exhibits without crowding; it could be brilliantly lighted and beautifully decorated, and would provide something entirely new and interesting to visitors. A smaller tent would be provided having an adequate dance floor for the benefit of those who will like to trip the light fantastic during the evening hours.

A number of entertainment features are planned, including good music daily, as has been the case in the past there will be no admission except for the dancing.

Charles M. Strawn, the new president of the association, is enthusiastic regarding the outlook for the success of the proposed show, and is certain to have the hearty cooperation of the board of directors and the entire membership for the work planned.

The 1923 automobile shows over the country begin in January and continue until the month of May. Invitations accompanied by tickets of admission have been received by local dealers to the New York City auto show January 6 to 13, and the Chicago show January 27 to February 3. So far as is known Jacksonville is the only city putting on a show of this nature and not charging an admission fee.

A number of the business men who had exhibits at the recent Jacksonville shows are already asking that space be reserved, and several who have not previously exhibited are anxious to be counted as among those present this spring.

FIFTEEN THOUSAND MAY THROG CITY

Deposit Coupon Stubs Early Today and Avoid Disappointment—Police Will Close Boxes at 12:30 Sharp.

No coupon stubs can be deposited for the gift campaign drawing after 12:30 o'clock. The deposit boxes will positively be closed at that hour, and police will take them to the big drum on the platform to be emptied. It is expected that a line will form about eleven o'clock. There will be three places at the gift room for depositing stubs; but all will be closed at 12:30 sharp.

At 10 o'clock this morning police will rope off the section of the square extending around the west and north sides from West State to North Main streets. Persons are asked not to park cars in this space earlier as they will be asked to move. People who want to deposit stubs this morning had better go to the gift room before 9 o'clock if they do not want to wait their turn.

Weather forecasts for today are clear and cold. This means a mammoth crowd. At least 15,000 people from this city and surrounding territory within a radius of fifty miles are expected to throng the city. The drawing will start at 1 o'clock sharp. Announcement of the rules will be made by J. L. Henry, chairman of the judges, L. L. Horen, chairman of the Gift Campaign committee, will then be introduced, after which the drawing will begin. Twenty little girls will be needed to draw the coupons, two working at a time in half hour shifts.

The big container is ample to hold the stubs. It will be about half full and is arranged inside so that stubs are thoroughly mixed at every revolution. It will be run during the drawing by an electric motor.

Two policemen will arrive on the scene at 12:30 and will take all the coupons to the platform and will deposit them in the large drum. The trap door of the drum will be locked and the drawing will begin at 1 o'clock. J. L. Henry is the chairman of the distribution and A. C. Metcalf is the vice chairman. Sam Camm, George B. Kendah and Harold C. Welch are to act as recorders and will write down the name and number of each coupon and the gift which each person receives as the coupons are taken out of the drum by the children.

The following children have been selected to take out the coupons: Dorothy Bernice Graham, Elizabeth James, Mabel Henderson, Agnes D. Wynn, Margaret Goebel, Margaret Gebert, Anna Mae Hulet, and Katherine L. Goebel. Two of these little girls will work at once and they will be relieved every half hour during the afternoon. An electric motor is to be installed inside of the drum. This motor will turn the drum around and will keep the coupons thoroughly mixed.

The 45-minute is in hopes that the winners of the gifts will not take them home until the day following the distribution. This will give the members of the committee more time and will insure a more efficient handling of the matter. However, if people have come to Jacksonville from some distance and do not wish to return for their gifts they may take the articles home with them. They will be given an order for the gifts and may present it at the gift room after the drawing and receive the articles. The arrangement has been made especially as an accommodation to people who come from a distance.

COMMUNITY FORUM AT WHITE HALL CHURCH

Interesting Program Carried Out at White Hall Sunday Night—Other News Items from White Hall.

White all, Jan. 2.—White Hall began the New Year right by having the benefits of the proceedings of the Community Forum held Sunday night in Princess theater as a quarterly feature of the services of the First Baptist church, an organization that is disclosing its value by taking hold of community problems and bringing about realizations that are so much more valuable to the average citizen than religious speculations and church formulas that have a tendency to narrow the vision. Out of this contraction has emerged the "church triumphant" so far as the church affairs of White Hall are concerned, and the community forum, like the Good Fellows, are instances of what is being accomplished.

This is the second Community Forum, and the presentation of the subject was preceded by music by the K. of P. band, J. F. Greer, president. Mrs. Rose Ballard handled "music," as one who has been connected with the younger life of our city. She advocated a musical instructor in the schools and referred to the uplifting influence of the Community chorus. H. O. Tunison presented "Business Economics." In the first place he expressed congratulation over the community possession of such a minister as heads the affairs of the First Baptist church. He commended what has been done, and gave Godspeed to all that may be undertaken in the future. The evil of abundance should be emphasized. We are material rather than ethical; we lose sight of the ethical because we lose sight of God. We must be taught lessons of thrift and frugality when prosperity returns. Each person owes a third of his time to the gratuitous service of his home town. It is not what we have earned or saved; it is what we have given out of ourselves for the community's welfare.

H. E. Bell briefly discussed "The Printed Page," and opened with the remark that he had never so much realized the immensity of the Princess theatre until he arose to speak on this occasion. He is inclined to prefer the printed page to the spoken. The newspapers and periodicals are indispensable and absolutely necessary, the greatest possessions are good health, a bright mind and a clear conscience to express good thoughts that others may understand and be benefited. All records of achievements are preserved and handed down to posterity by the printed page.

E. C. Pearce on "Play Life," expressed an interest in life's play not only for himself, but for the sake of his children. Play is the period of time following work, and we should foster play as it affects the adult as well as children. Playground facilities are essential, and we should lend every encouragement to any enterprise along this line, especially the expressed desire of Mrs. A. M. Carey in recent months to provide White all with an outside park for picnic, play, chauntiqua and camping purposes as a memorial to the Smith family. Mrs. Carey has now returned to California, and it is understood that she had not found sufficient encouragement in carrying out her philanthropic desire for the sake of her old home community. Rev. L. E. Ellison concluded with "Our Greatest Institution," which he ascribed to the church.

that stands out for moral betterment and makes man a little better than the animal. The church should be a benefactor and not a beneficiary. If we make it of better service in this community, we arouse and develop the latent resources. If all we do as church people is to sustain four or five men as pastors, then we are falling far short of our duty and opportunity. We must all fix our eyes upon Him who said: "I came into the world to minister, not to be ministered to."

Weather Report.
The monthly report of R. B. Pearce, co-operative observer of the weather bureau at White Hall, discloses that high temperature continues to prevail, the average for the month of December being 2.5 degrees above normal. The maximum on December 24 was 65 degrees and on the 25th, 62 degrees, by far the highest readings at Christmas time on record at the local station. Previous December record maximums were 72 on the 9th, 1918; 62 on the 2nd, 1917; 71 on the 4th, 1916; 64 on the 5th, 1912; 63 on the 10th, 1911; 66 on the 7th, 1908, but none such at the Christmas season.

The highest reading for the month was 65 on the 24th and the lowest 4 below zero on the 18th. The mean maximum was 44.5 and mean minimum 23.3.

The total rainfall was 1.75 inches, which included one inch of snow on the 17th that had entirely disappeared by the 22nd, but afforded adequate wheat protection during the cold period between those dates. The heaviest rainfall in 24 hours was 0.56 inch on the 7th. These were six days with 0.01 inch precipitation or over, twelve partly cloudy and twelve cloudy days. The prevailing wind direction was southeast. Thunderstorms on the 7th and 30th.

The marriage of Turner Milford Webster and Miss Alice Lillian Baldwin, both of Milton, Pike county, was solemnized at 3 o'clock p. m. Sunday in the home of F. N. Collins on Carrollton street, the officiating clergyman being Rev. L. E. Ellison, pastor of the First Baptist church. The groom is a farmer.

S. W. NICHOLS RECALLS INTERESTING EVENTS

Local Man Now in Tombstone, Ariz., Writes Interesting Letter to Journal Readers.

The following letter has just been received by the Journal from S. W. Nichols, who is spending a number of months in Tombstone, Ariz.: Tombstone, Arizona, Dec. 14. Dear Journal: A short time since I was treated to a sight that vividly brought back the stirring times of the war. A train of lumbering army wagons went by only they were all manned by drivers who rode on the wagons. Sometimes in the army the drivers would ride the near or left hand wheel horse which in turn steered the team with a single line attached to the bridle of the left lead horse which in turn steered the motions of the horse next to him with a jockey stick. How many readers of the Journal can tell what sort of an implement that is? Not many, I fancy. It was this. It was a stick about four feet long tied at one end of the collar of the left hand horse and to the bit of the horse by his side.

Sometimes on the farm it was not used when there was obstruction in the field. In the places where my early years were spent people managed the horses at the plow and on the farm generally with the single line only using the double when they were using the wagon; plowing with either one or two horses, harrowing and similar work were nearly always done with the single line and intelligent horses used on the near or left hand side would in time learn "Gee," "Haw" and "Come In" so that often a man would not use the bit or line at all. Elderly readers of the Journal will appreciate this.

The whole train was a motley collection. There were mounted troops of dusky hue, not African; there were Africans also wearing the khaki and on some of the wagons there were Indian squaws and children. It was indeed a turnout to awaken a man's curiosity, and as they camped a little way below the town, I went down to their stopping place to investigate the cause of our unusual visit. There I discovered what I sought, and I wouldn't have missed it for a lot. I learned that a force of eight-teen Government Indian scouts were being moved from a fort three hundred miles distant and whose name I have forgotten to Fort Huachuca (pronounced Wha-chu-ka) about twenty-six miles distant from this place. The outfit was in command of Lieut. F. C. Thomas, a capable young officer and a perfect gentleman. He courteously gave me full permission to inspect the camp, ask all questions I wanted to and get all the information possible. The only subject on which he was at all backward was his own history which I had to draw out piecemeal.

He is truly a hero of the world war and well deserves all the honors given him. He saw much strenuous service across the seas as a member of the Second Cavalry. He was in the defensive sector of Toul, the second battle of the Marne and there indeed received a baptism of fire.

With genuine American dash and heroism he didn't know anything about retreating and in his eagerness to go ahead found himself at one time cut off from his command and a little squad of Germans thought they had an easy victim. He let them come most uncomfortably near when drawing a revolver with each hand he quickly made four of them bite the dust before they knew what they were about and the other six utterly dazed he marched in triumph to his own command.

In St. Mehl, Meuse, the Argonne and other gory fields he saw the hardest service and doubtless much more could be truthfully written regarding the young man, but he was slow and unwilling to talk about himself. He received the distinguished service cross of the 80th division and came home apparently in good physical condition, though doubtless there are in his system results of his arduous work on foreign soil. All honor to such noble young men without whose services our own fair land today would have been under the iron heel of a German despot.

The Indians were a truly interesting lot, and had they been willing to talk more could have given many thrilling tales of prowess and daring. They were with Pershing in Mexico and were the bone and sinew of the whole scouting force. To say they are Apaches is enough to stamp them as superior and they are wholly loyal.

When treacherous Greasers were to be run down; when the retreat of Mexican guerillas was to be unceremonious; when the messengers of Villa and similar commanders were to be intercepted; when any scouting which demanded hard work, endurance such as only an Indian knows; skill in woodcraft; following a trail which seemingly was about as easy to see as the track of a bird in the air; riding twenty-four to forty-eight hours without rest and many more such tests as these; then it was that the brave Apache scouts were called on and so capable was their work that an appreciative government is now rewarding them with conditions not strenuous.

All were permitted to marry and have their squaws with them and in the outfit there were thirty-five children and they surely presented a motley array. The men were, of course, dressed in khaki, but the other members of the family looked picturesque indeed.

The female portion of the families seemingly have paid little attention to the amenities of civilization, though they are not able to dress in skins and other products of the forest, but which it comes to attractiveness, perish the thought. Their hair was generally bobbed short (can it be they are aping the customs of our young women of the present day?) while combs had evidently been forgotten since early youth.

Each family had a little campfire to itself and with a few rude utensils such as we used to have when on a long march, they were preparing their evening meal. Lieut. Thomas said the Government treated them very well as they richly deserved. The squaws seemed wholly at home and bent over their little fires with perfect ease. There was sage brush and trash convenient and the supper was not long in being prepared and placed in the community dish from which each member of the family helped himself or herself and the children along with the grownups.

It brought vividly to mind an experience I had when in Egypt, along with four young lady friends. In the city of Alexandria we had for a guide a regular knock-down and drag-out Arab who called himself "Billy." He was showing us the interesting parts of the city when in an unfortunate moment one of our party told the guide we would like to see where he lived. How that question was regretted at the time and yet it supplied an experience never to be forgotten.

"Billy" told the driver of our carriage where to go, but we soon had to descend and go about as so many of the streets of those Oriental cities are but a few feet wide and as crooked as a worm track.

Finally we came to a door in a wall which the leader opened and we entered a court perhaps fourteen feet square and on each of three sides was a den in which a family existed. I can hardly say lived. Of course no furniture of any kind and nothing else to make life miserable. Two of the families had several children each and they eyed us with true childish curiosity. On the fourth side of the court was the door already mentioned and beside it a dirty cave supplied with two or three filthy pots or kettles in which the family cooking was done. After we had looked about a bit and were ready to depart "Billy" asked us to stay to dinner. The young ladies looked at me in dismay, but I told them we wouldn't insult our host worse by spitting in his face than by refusing his hospitality when in his house and stay we must. It was do or die. We did.

It was at the time of the feast of Ramadan when evening Arab will have feast if possible and "Billy" had secured some very fat mutton which we had to see cooked in that dreadful cave. Had any one told the young ladies beforehand what was ahead of them they would have said they were unequal to the occasion, but you never know what you can do till you have to try.

The guide didn't ask us to sit on the floor at dinner, but went out and raised a small table and six chairs and asked us to sit around the festal board. There was a crock of greasy soup and another of meat floating in grease and boiled to scraps and then he had been to a hotel and secured a lot of leavings from dinner plates of guests, bits of bread, crusts of pie and the like.

Each of us was supplied with a wooden spoon and invited to dip into the dishes and eat which we did to the best of our ability and when we didn't eat fast enough to suit "Billy" he would take his spoon, fish up some sort of a morsel and say it on one of our spoons and bid us try it.

Finally with his dirty fingers he took from the grease a piece of meat, laid it on the spoon of one of the young ladies who cast at me a look which said, "I simply cannot." I seized the morsel myself and ate it and pronounced it very fine and every time the guide took the liberty of using his fingers that way I managed to get the morsel myself and spare the girls and when I told my pastor of the praise I bestowed on our excellent (?) dinner he said he thought I wouldn't be halted at the pearly gates for that little departure from strict veracity.

Lieut. Thomas said they traveled mostly at night or early in the morning as it was easier on the mules and two a. m. next day would see them off. They went as intended and I shall long remember the courteous officer, the Apache Indians and the colored troops from Fort Huachuca in charge, for they too were a fine lot of fellows.

Market Report

BIG RECEIPTS LEAD TO HEAVY SELLING

CHICAGO, Jan. 2.—Big receipts led to heavy selling of wheat today on the part both of holders and speculators. As a result, prices closed weak 3½ to 4½c net lower, with May 3½ to 4½c to $1.18½ and July 3½ to $1.10½.
Corn finished 2½c at 2½ to 2½c down and oats of 1½c to 1½c to 2½c.
In provisions there were gains varying from 15 to 27c.

Altho the reports of wheat arriving at domestic primary terminals were the figures for three days the showing nevertheless was too bearish to be explained by this fact and with the Argentine corn movement just ahead and Canada competing sharply and still holding impressive reserves the confidence of bulls appeared to wane. Persistent selling pressure on the market set in early and remained constant throughout the day, notably from houses with eastern connections despite indications of some export business as values declined. Final quotations in the wheat market were at practically the lowest level of the season, more than 8c a bushel under last week's high point for May delivery. Announcement of a substantial increase of the United States visible supply total emphasized during the late trading the downward tendency of values.
Shorts were able to buy freely all day without causing any material rally.

Corn and oats as well as wheat gave way in price support being of insufficient volume to overcome the effect of liquidation by owners. Heavy receipts of corn here had a depressing influence and so did an increase of the visible supply of corn.

Provisions were higher in line with the hog market.
